We have a new interim president

We are delighted to announce that John Irwin has been appointed Interim President of the National Allotment Society. John has a long history with allotments, having been involved for many years in both practical growing and community initiatives, and brings a wealth of experience and dedication to the role.

He has been nominated for election as President at the AGM in June, and we look forward to supporting him as he helps guide the Society into the future.

A Fond Farewell and a New Opportunity

We extend our sincere thanks to Jeff Davies, who has served as Treasurer of the National Allotment Society since 2020. Jeff's dedication and careful financial stewardship have played an important role in supporting the Society's work. As he steps down, we wish him every happiness as he enjoys more time on his allotment, the tennis court, and with his grandchildren.

We are now seeking a new voluntary National Treasurer to help guide the Society's financial future. If you have financial experience and a passion for allotments and community growing, we would love to hear from you.
